COMMUNITY AND ECONOMIC DEVELOPMENT, MASTER OF ARTS

The Master of Arts (M.A.) in Community and Economic Development program incorporates two distinct, yet related bodies of theory and practice. One addresses economic development and the other addresses the larger area of community development. This program stresses the importance of linking these two concepts in a model that integrates the development of social capital and community capacity with the economic development of the community. After a broad examination of the public policy process, students will examine theoretical development concepts, as well as approaches that real communities have used in an effort to produce positive economic outcomes, as well as improvement in the quality of life of their members. Building on this foundation, students explore issues of relevance to community and development by selecting, in consultation with the program coordinator, elective courses that satisfy their particular interests and career needs. This master's degree program culminates with a final project that provides the opportunity to examine a community development problem or issue in an in-depth manner.

Students for Whom this Program is Appropriate

This program is designed for those who wish to build agencies, businesses and nonprofit organizations which simultaneously pursue economic and socially responsible objectives – the integrated bottom line – to create more attractive, inclusive and sustainable communities. Graduates of the M.A. in Community and Economic Development program will transform existing organizations to be socially responsible, start their own organizations that embrace social issues, and pioneer new ways of management that meet human needs and treat stakeholders with justice and respect. Students may come from business or nonprofit organizations or governmental agencies such as economic development agencies, or they may be "private" individuals who want to assume positions of leadership in changing their communities.

Final Project

The final project represents the capstone experience in the program. This shall take the form of a Policy Memorandum, which is designed to support students' professional and personal goals. This is a challenging task which draws on and brings together the skills and concepts learned through the master's program. It requires identification of a public policy issue, examination and interpretation of various sources of information relating to the issue including scholarly sources, analysis of possible approaches to the issue and the student's recommendations regarding the issue.

Learning Activities and Course Goals

As the capstone project for the master's program, the policy memo builds on prior coursework and provides the opportunity for the student to engage in a sustained examination of a major policy issue. The purpose is to reinforce the knowledge and skills required to analyze policy issues, develop defensible positions on policy issues, and clearly communicate a position in the form of a policy memo, which is standard fare in the work of legislators, elected officials, agency heads and other organizational leaders involved in the formation of policy.

The policy memo includes the exploration of a critical issue; the development of alternative approaches to the issue and a reasoned, evidence-based, defensible argument about how the issue should be addressed. It is important to keep in mind the distinction between a policy memo and other academic papers. Whereas academic papers build arguments by gradually introducing the least important ideas first, a policy memo uses an "inverted pyramid" of ideas, delivered as efficiently as possible, beginning with the most important. In a policy memo getting at the truth through the exploration and the interpretation of what is known about an issue is more important than developing new knowledge. As such, no thesis statement or theoretical framework underpins a policy memo.

Course goals:

 the ability to clearly identify a critical policy issue related to the student's program;

- the ability to identify and access relevant information related to the problem;
- demonstration of a nuanced comprehension, evaluation and interpretation of the body of knowledge surrounding the issue;
- exhibition of a disciplined application of knowledge in the formulation of alternative, feasible approaches to the issue; and
- presentation, in tightly-constructed prose, of a well-reasoned defensible approach to the issue that draws on relevant concepts from previously completed coursework.

The student will engage in the relevant readings for this project and prepare drafts of the policy memo. As opposed to preparing the entire memo all at once, the student will develop the memo in sections as follows: Executive Summary (while this appears first in a policy memo, its exact contents will change as the student progresses through this course); Argument, Counter Arguments, Analysis, Recommendations.

Following instructions in the online course, drafts will be submitted to the instructor for review and comments; the student will revise project drafts and return. This process will be repeated until the draft is accepted by the instructor. While there is no set number of pages for a policy memo, which can range from a page to a hundred pages, for the purposes of this program, 20-30 pages is the target. The specific task should dictate the length. The writer should use a direct, efficient style of writing that results in a "tight" memo that does not ramble or engage in needless repetition.

Upon successful completion of the program, students will be able to:

- · Understand the policy process from formation to implementation;
- · Create paradigm for analyzing public policy;
- · Intensively engage with specific policy issues;
- · Engage in sustained, disciplined research effort; and
- Develop competencies that they are likely to need as professionals in the public policy arena.
